

Chanavia Haddock is an author, artist, and lover of all things creative. She has always had a sincere love for picture books, writing, art, nature, and all things creative. As a child Chanavia was always drawn to the beauty of nature. As an adult that fascination has only intensified with her realization that nature explains everything. Upon completing her MBA coursework, she decided to bring her passions together and pursue life as a children's book author. She currently resides in North Carolina close to her family and friends where she is constantly in awe of the natural beauty and creativity that surrounds her.
